Lindaluz [00:00:00] But I really wanted her to get, you know, the whole direction on it. So Stella's African eatery, it used to be one of the best food spots, I think. And what happened is they had to go. Well, they left because the chef, she ended up traveling, so she's out traveling, making food, living, living the dreams she's doing, she's doing great. But this week's what was it like you would come in early only because, like the food would be done by two. Wow. If you you came at 2:30 three o'clock. That's it. You, you're out of luck. But amazing food. Amazing Chef. Yeah, we just like him over here also do the hip hop couple of hip hop where I wanted to do another mural. So we had Kayla Farrow paint this. Just go away, Julia Child, who art just so art. So she did the faces we worked together on the backgrounds did like a really cool like rainbow gradient. She was the faces, and then I just helped put the name of the business. And then literally like a year, less than a year after this thing ends up leaving. So now I don't know if they're going to come back or, you know, what's going to be in the space. I don't know when they're going to stay.

Camilo Do they own the building?

Lindaluz [00:01:24] I'm not sure. I don't think so.

Camilo [00:01:29] Wow, so we missed out from this wonderful first.

Lindaluz Oh yeah, it was great we would have been eating right now at the V.A. This is a great spot.
